Hi Don – thanks for the briefing paper, and really nice job on it. We liked the changes you made to the options section, though we didn't have time to add yours in. Still, Christine forwarded your briefing to Dennis. Good luck to you guys, and one of us can try to give you a call before your briefing so you know how things went here.

All,

Here's the final version for our briefing with Ken Kopocis and Ellen Gilinsky in our front office tomorrow at 3 EST/noon PST. It appears that the EPA folks also received this final version from Ken's scheduler in the form of a meeting update, but now the NOAA folks have it, too. We trimmed back some intro material for Options 1 & 2, but it's otherwise identical to the version sent out in my previous email (below).

All,

Lynda and I wanted you to see the near-final version of the briefing handout. It's now formatted in the style preferred by our front office and it reflects all the input we have received to date. In the interest of space and version control, we could not accommodate the full length of everyone's desired changes, but we have reached a reasonable accommodation/happy medium. That said, it's at ~10 pages and may shrink a bit before all is said and done. This is less of an invitation to make changes to the briefing handout, and more of a heads-up about the content of the briefing. However, if there is a critical change that you feel strongly about, please send me any specific edits (clearly marked) by 2 PM EST today (~1 hour). This timing will allow me to meet the deadline set by our front office.

Thanks.
